Hunting in New Zealand

One of the most impressive hunting grounds in one of the most beautiful countries in the world. Extraordinary game species and fantastic landscapes establish New Zealand as a travel destination for the globetrotting hunter.

Our partner consciously focuses on quality and offers hunts, which are perfectly suited to the wishes of individual clients. The hunts are conducted on a 1:1 basis. Matt, our partner in New Zealand, attaches great importance to both hunting ethics and to the quality of the hunt and of the trophies. He is founding member of the „New Zealand Association of Game Estates“ and a member of „The New Zealand Professional Hunting Guides Association“.

Conscientious wildlife management combined with a limited number of hunts ensures the high quality of this outfitter and helps to guarantee it from season to season.

Our partner offers hunting guests a successful hunt of ripe trophies. This allows us to offer hunts and hunting costs separately, which means you are only charged the trophy fees if your hunt is successful.

Accommodation

The hunting ground and the lodge are situated at the lake Wanaka, which has a size of more than 22,000 ha. Wilderness alternates with beauty of the landscape. Matt also has access to additional hunting grounds on the South Island.

You stay in the game reserve in a comfortable lodge, which offers spectacular panoramic views over the gorgeous landscape.

The lodge is located on the South Island, close to the city of Wanaka. The surrounding area is very mountainous and named after the like-titled Lake Wanaka, which is New Zealand's fourth largest inland lake.

Hunting season: Hunting in New Zealand begins in late February and continues until late August although summer hunts can also be arranged for certain species. The 'rut' period for stags in New Zealand is during the months March and April and may vary in intensity depending on the temperatures. The alpine animals rut during May and June although can be successfully hunted in their bachelor herds during other times of the year as well.
